A Merciless Judge

One Who Shows No Favor.

A merciless judge is Father Time. Before him the weak and the wanting go to the wall. Only the truth can stand. For years the following statement from a Norway resident has withstood this sternest of all tests.

M. M. Kilgore, Danforth St., Norway, says: "I had backache and rheumatic pains for more than a year, caused by disordered kidneys. My kidneys were acting irregularly all the time and I was so lame and sore across the small of my back that I could hardly stand. At night I rested but little and was feeling miserable much of the time. I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at F. P. Stone's Drug Store, and a few boxes cured me of the trouble." (Statement given July 24, 1908).

A Lasting Cure. On June 7, 1916, Mr. Kilgore said: "I gladly give you my permission to continue using my recommendation as I am still a firm believer in Doan's Kidney Pills. The cure they gave me has proven permanent."

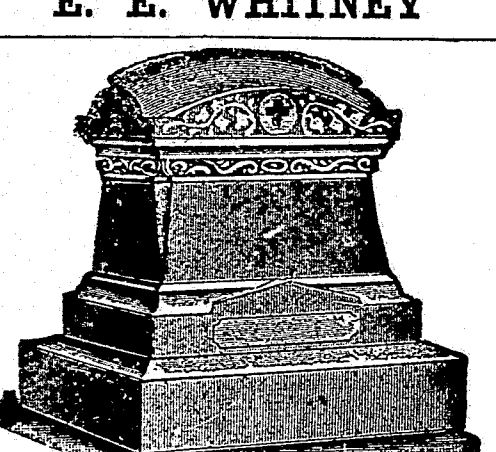

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Kilgore has twice recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. 35-36

"You Should See Jim Eat"

The man who can't take three square meals a day is usually weak or ailing. Food and plenty of it is necessary to health and strength. When a man is off his feed, the first thing to do is to get the stomach in order and coax back the appetite. And "L. F. Atwood's Medicine" is the thing to do it with. A great remedy for the stomach, liver and bowels, that soon sets these organs working properly, and creates a natural and healthy desire for food, which is one of the first signs of getting well. "L. F. Atwood's Medicine" is an old-fashioned remedy and a good thing to have in the house when any member of the family feels weak and out of sorts.

FREE—On receipt of a yellow outside wrapper with your opinion of the medicine, we will send one of our Needle Books with a good assortment of high grade needles, useful in every family.

ADAM'S ALE.

Not any beer for me, my friend. I've better give a good excuse. You can't give a good excuse. She told me in my early youth, to at all times speak the truth. Stand for the right and proudly say, I'll not drink any beer today. Today I'd gladly thank her twice. Who gave me this good advice. You'll be much better off you'll find, if you will leave it for Adam's Ale. It makes you stagger on the street. The people say he must be cheap; To my old habit, there I cling. It is the emblem of disgrace. To visit yonder boiling spring. To my old habit, there I cling. I still keep drinking Adam's Ale. I keep it in my water pail. Copyright 1916. Frederick M. Davis.

Annoyed by Porcupines. F. E. Emery has five acres of yellow corn down on the lower part of his farm. Something commenced to break it down and eat large quantities of it every night. As it was a lot of work to tend the traps, bury the dead and perform the other duties of farm life Mr. Nevers called to his assistant, Ernest Merrill, a youth hunter, who traps in the fall of the year on the head waters of Pray's Brook.

Build a Home

Having been requested by many of the business men of our town to erect homes, which at this time are so much needed, we have worked out a plan somewhat similar to Building and Loan Associations, which will enable anyone with a little cash to own a home of their own, paying for it in easy monthly installments.

We have cuts of all kinds of residences, with estimates of cost which we will be pleased to show to those interested.

Select your location and style of house and we will give you the exact cost to you per month.

Work in the corn factory commenced last week. 400,000 cans are to be put up.

Twenty-five Years Ago This Week.

Rev. T. J. Ramsdell has closed his work at the Baptist Society here.

J. C. Bennett & Co. have dissolved partnership and A. T. Bennett succeeds to the meat business. Owing to ill health the senior Bennett retires.

A select party of fifty or more were the guests of Fred H. Cummings at Goat Island Tuesday evening. It was styled a "Green Corn Roast and Dance."

A large bonfire was made and sweet corn was roasted over the coals and with the aid of salt, pepper, and butter, was most excellent. Asa True blew the cornet, Mellic Dunham the bow, and Henry Foster and C. S. Akers beat the drum. The return to town was at 1:30 a. m. Wednesday and they marched to the music of Yankee Doodle much to the annoyance of the sleeping citizens in the village. This green corn racket broke up the would-be dance at Concert Hall, which was advertised for that evening.

W. S. Benson starts for Florence, Arizona this week. If he don't like, he will return. His son accompanies him.

T. L. Webb, the clothier, gives a ticket to the fair for every four dollar purchase.

N. H. Palmer of East Stoneham has sold 134 bushels of blueberries. They retail for 10 cents per quart.

Twenty-four Years Ago This Week.

Kenneth Gurney is the new clerk at the Beal's Hotel.

Coats are Growing Longer.

In the September Woman's Home Companion the fashion editor says:

"Coats are conspicuously showing the descending line. Autumn suit coats will vary in length from 28 to 33 inches, 34 inches being the most popular length; while 45 inches is a good length for the separate coat."

"Plaids and panels are featured. The flare is not as prominent as in the spring models. This does not mean that they are not wide at the bottom, for they are. The separate coats especially, show a sweep at the hem. Some have the upper portion made with fitted lines, others hang loose from the shoulders."

"Plush, velvet, panels—which is the short nap French velvet—and imitation fur fabrics are all good materials for these coats. The leading novelty in these imitations is Rodier's edelweiss, a close imitation of Persian lamb."

"These suit coats and separate coats alike rely upon their collars and cuffs for their novelty note, and I assure you they have not relied in vain. The cape collar about the only real military note in the new fashions, and the high, wrinkled, crush collars, are the leaders. They both have the big clumsy look in common—it is regarded as their chief style note. Some of these collars may be worn two ways, buttoned up close around the neck, or laid out flat in cape style."

"Many of the separate coats have kimono sleeves, often so stitched that they have a raglan effect. The full leg 'n' mutton style is seen, too, made with deep flaring cuffs."

"Suit coats are not showing many long shouldered effects. The armhole is generally the regular size. The sleeve most favored is the regulation coat sleeve with nothing new or unusual about it until the cuff is reached. Then comes the novelty. Very deep cuffs are worn, fur and button trimmed. Big, flaring, inverted bell cuffs are fashionable, lined with a contrasting, often gay color. There are cuffs that swing out from the sleeve and appear to be just a broad band caught together and on the sleeve with a big button and buttonhole. In fact, there is no end to the cuff novelties."

"In the early fall many women of fashion will include in their wardrobes French-looking peleries of satin. These long coats were first made by Calot."

A Bottle Social.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church held a novel social in the Men's class

Friday evening. Mrs. Kendall and Mrs. Millie Clark were in charge. Invitations had been sent out that read:

"They are to have a bottle social. You are invited. If you bring your bottle with you we'll be delighted. Bring any shape or size, but it must be of real benefit to the community."

There was much speculation as to what they were to do with the bottles. The Ladies were given slips with conundrums and the gentlemen who could answer one that was read was that lady's partner.

They were then asked to go to the kitchen and there they found a pan of dough, a mixture of flour and salt, and were told to encase their bottles with the dough and paint flowers on them or stripe them or decorate them in any way. Water color paints were also provided. While they were drying, a lady was brought in and each lady was provided with a piece of soft wood and told to borrow their partner's jack knife and whittle a stopper to fit the jug. The gentlemen were then required to write a cape recipe and present to the lady. A pleasant evening was passed.

A TRIBUTE TO MAINE

"It is not surprising that Massachusetts' new commissioner of education, Payson Smith, comes from Maine. The wonder is that Maine men have evaded the office for so long. When a Massachusetts town seeks a high school principal, or, together with its neighboring towns, seeks a superintendent of schools, where does it turn? In a really remarkable number of cases it turns to Maine, or at all events finds a man who originally hailed from Maine. With the predominance of Maine men in Massachusetts education, it is not surprising that a Maine man has been chosen to head the system."

The eminence of Maine as a training ground for principals and superintendents is worthy of more study than it has received. Is it that education is held in higher esteem "down East" and that the men and women who devote themselves to it feel that they are undertaking a life work, that they are of real benefit to the community? Or is it that they receive an all round college training which fits them to teach the many subjects that one man is compelled to teach in many of the rural high schools? Massachusetts and the other states no doubt provide more specialists than Maine does. But all your round schoolmaster, the man who can teach the dozen subjects in the high school curriculum (no; not all equally well), who takes a leading part in the religious and social life of the community, who often must work for a salary that is barely enough for his own family's needs, this is the type of man of which Maine has sent us many examples in the past.

"It would be idle to pretend that they have been invariably distinguished as teachers. Some indeed who were admirable scholars and admirable men, have been only indifferent teachers. But they have seldom failed to help the community which has called them to its service. One is forced to believe that the 'Maine schoolmaster' is like the Maine sea captain, is an indispensable pillar of the American commonwealth.—Springfield Republican.

Written to Kill Time While the Crops Ripen at Meredith Center, N. H.

Sleeping, eating and other attending miseries make up the day.

Everybody is busy but me, I sit around lighting matches and throwing the un-burnt portion on the lawn together with cigar stubs that are picked up by the ever industrious Walter Smith. These things don't look half as bad as black patches of cylinder oil on the grass that can be tracked into the house and there create a disturbance.

Oran Carr married into a farm "out on the other road" and lived there until he died some three years ago. It was the Bachelor place and was on as beautiful a ridge as the far famed Highlands of Bridgton.

Everybody kept summer boarders and this crop was carefully cultivated by the farmers except Mr. Carr, who felt he could make more money with less perplexities by tilling the soil. He was exceedingly proud of the nice location of his place as on it was the summit of the peak from which you could see the big lake and all the little ones and the mountains. Truly the view is magnificent from this eminence.

Sight seeking city cousins were continually tramping down the grass in the upper field but this did not bother Mr. Carr.
He was pleased to have them come and always used them well. In fact, he enjoyed their visits and made many lasting friendships among the non-resident visitors of Batchelder Ridge; he was liberal with apples, cherries, maple sugar, etc.
For the select few he would draw a picture of cider and have a social chat but every visitor was loud in the praise of the ice-cold water that came from the well.
This well was deep, very deep, how deep I dare not say, but the coldness and purity of the water together with Mr. Carr's hospitality made the drinking of this water exceedingly popular among the ridge boarders.

One hot day a party of scenery-seekers who were new in this section came down from the Upper Field and stopped at the well for water and Mr. Carr got into conversation with them. Of course the remarkable coldness of the water was loudly extolled and praised. One in the party asked Mr. Carr how it was that that water in this well was so much colder than that from Mr. Pease's well where they were stopping.

"Well," said Mr. Carr in his slow matter-of-fact way, "Frank Pease don't take care of his well in the winter as I do mine; he is too busy riding round at ending parties and Grange meetings; he might just as well have ice-water in his well all summer long as I do if he wanted it, but he's some lazy when you people are gone and he knows his boarders can get all the ice-water they want up here and he lets me furnish it and never pays me a cent for it and I've been doing it a good many years."

"But," Mr. Carr "how do you do it?
And does Mr. Pease know about it?" "Certainly," he's been knowing how I treat my well for more than ten years, but he's too busy and shiftless in the winter time. You see we have awful cold weather up here in the winter and I pump out the water and freeze up the well two feet at a time from the bottom say twenty to thirty feet and this is enough to last me through the hot spell and furnish my neighbors and friends with ice-water. I've done this ever since them scientific New Durham chaps told me how to do it. Pease could do it with his well just like a book if he wanted to."

It was with much difficulty that Mr.
Pease could convince his guests that Oran Carr had been stringing them on one of his jokes.

Mr. Carr has since died and I attended the auction last year and Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, author and dean of the Simmons College, Boston, bought the farm and is now the possessor of this remarkable treated well.

At this auction a collection of several hundred pitchers, no two alike, brought less than thirty dollars and a much worn buffalo overcoat $15.75 and a rack load of barrels, sixty cents.

Mr. Carr for years had been collecting pitchers and at one time had between four and five hundred coming from all quarters of the world. Each pitcher was labeled with name of giver or where purchased.

A few years ago he was seriously considering building a fire proof cement building for their safe keeping.

One of the pitchers came from our house, mother gave it to him years ago, and after his death it was returned to my sister. Many pitchers were similarly returned and the collection at the time of the sale was not at its best, but it surely was worth more money than it brought.

These are hot days and as the sun comes into the big barn doors I move further back in the shade. When I begin to feel its getting towards noon I send one of the grandchildren up to examine the mark on the floor. The shadows fall on it at seven minutes past twelve. The mail man gets here about 10:30 and I can keep in touch with time pretty accurately.
Those careless children don't distribute my mail accurately and they recently gave an important package to mother and she got wise to a carefully guarded secret. Such is the result of having round you wild, untamed, untutored city-bred children. I'd wring their necks as you do chickens' if I had my way but this would cause a family row; therefore I submit and am trying to get square with them by writing this.

I fear if I live much longer I'll become what Will Cole said of Walcott: "A peevish old man."

Every basket on the place is filled with apples and I'm throwing all waste material on the floor to blow about and mix with cigar ashes.

Company is expected—they are to telephone before coming—and then the barn will be put in order, swept out and made to look well.

There is no deceit or deception about this, it's the way with a majority of families and this household is no exception.

ance of Stanis Jewett I surmised he and and Col. Jewett were using the same half ton and saving expense or that possibly a mistake had been made in the printing office.

The women will go to the city and make a 98 cent purchase and talk about it all the evening and seem to enjoy it.
I have known men hereabouts to go to Franklin and make a purchase and on their return be talkative for hours. Funny isn't it?

Down in Maine I know a man who sends to Boston and makes a purchase and on its arrival it's a ha, ha, ha and a hoo, hoo, hoo and a he, he, he for a whole week, in which all the family join.
S. G. Richardson says practiced meeting should be shunned, and he is right.
Franklin, N. H. and Boston are licensed towns and the latter has no Preston Act either to hinder business.

"A melancholy attendance on misery; a peevish subordination of self and a continued interruption of pleasure." What is it? Dr. H. L. Bartlett knows as he told me.

He was an entire, total, complete failure as a farmer. This was the condition rendered in the case of Swain vs.
Smith. It stands to this day and subsequent events prove its correctness.
"Like Pickering's blood, it flew in every direction" is an expression fraught with meaning in this section. Use it with care.

"Cut the Rope" is equivalent here to "Wallow on the Cove." Both express a condition meaningless out of local environments. The first is a Meredith expression and the other is known to Oxford and Otisfield citizens. Both convey an idea. Can you guess it? If not, make inquiries.

"We are now feeding the presses with tablespoons." This was Don Seitz's of the N. Y. World wrote me last week.
I understand it, can you?

"He gave it to Tom Tinker to ring Newmarket bell." It meant something in its day. Perhaps you can catch on.
I doubt it though.

"I vouch it's so, Hiram, but I'd like to know on what you pin your faith." This expresses a sad and uncertain condition known locally in Bowerbank, Me., and equally applicable everywhere.

"If ever I marry again, I'll marry a woman that never had any mother." This expression was recently made to me and it carries an ocean of meaning along with my sympathy.

"Don't you know the farnal eels are biting?" No good out of Piscataquis County, Maine, but the sense in it is universal.

"Oh Lord, if you can't help me; don't help the bear; lay low and I'll do my best." Another one from the same county. It's known as the Frenchman's prayer.

"You are just two weeks too late as I've given my heart to a girl in Sangor-ville." Good in Foxcroft and Dover, Me. No good here.

"The king said unto his serving man,
'Fetch me that roly polly pudding as quickly as you can.' That's me during a five months' sickness with five different nurses. If not, why not?"

"Pretty much good for nothing" is good the world over. In Norway it brings to mind Mr. Mark Smith, Doll Young and The Danforth trade, where the "eastest mite of a certain ingredient would render the product 'pretty much good for nothing.'"

"John Q. P. Y. Gove, United States to the Weirs" expressed a condition forty and more years ago. If you doubt it, ask Neighbor Glidden, who now lives in Somerville, Mass.

A young man, driving a Ford Run-about through Main Street, Laconia and making love to two girls on the seat with him and not "winging" foot passengers or colliding with other vehicles, was a marked success last Monday.

I saw it as did others.
Such skill at road operating should be rewarded with an extra sized metal badge and I suggest that the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles send him one.
His car number was—

Grandmarm recently took the iron horse out of its moorings and only one side of the door suffered. This is better than what Walter Gray of South Paris did, as she didn't have to send for a diasmith to come in the night to fix the running board.

"Jack" was a troublesome wen between the toes on his right hind foot.
Dr. Rob. Smith of the city is coming to remove it. He will administer ether and do the foot up in iodiform gauze and then there will be two rank-smelling and crippled.

I am now provided with an armed chair in the Senate Chamber—the village store that body early recognized the in-families and voted that I should have a chair to sit in instead of roosting on a nail keg as the others do. I feel greatly honored, but think of my chagrin the other morning when I found a robust four year old boy sitting in it and refusing to give it up. Such is life!

Frank Taylor—I call him Zachariah —agreed to mow the bushes by the road side, but as he is tenement hunting he hasn't got round to do it yet, and I'm looking for someone else, but all seem busy getting ready to do something and can't come.

The irony of fate. The man who made Dick Gove's steam auto forty years ago, was knocked down and fatally injured by a modern gasoline chariot this month.
He was flag man at the Black Brook Crossing at Lakeport and his name was Eben C. Clough and 567 autos had passed the crossing that day.

A dollar a cylinder was the old price charged for burning out carbon on motor engines. It has now dropped to fifty cents a cylinder. With 6, 8, and 12 cylinders to a car and burning low grade oil, no wonder the garage men become wealthy and build cement business blocks and garages!

I write the truth only to throw it in the waste basket—on the floor; basket is full of apples—as I know if sent to the office it would never find its way into the paper. I recently put together a personal experience-article on physicians, nursing and surgery, together with a bill of costs but had wit enough about me not to bother the office with it. It was too truthful and dealt with a condition known to everyone.

Had a tire blow-out at East Tilton on the 18th, and it cost me $22.10.

Cooky-Making Made Easy

Cooky-making, always a hard task, even for skilled cooks, is rendered easy by cutting the work in two. In the first place molasses, fruit or some kind of soda-raised cooky in the summer-time is preferred.

There are three reasons for this: First, fruit, nut or molasses cookies are substantially to taste, following the light and crisp of hot days; second, they keep well, permitting a large batch to be made at one time, and third, and chief, many varieties are improved by preparing the dough beforehand and allowing it to stand and chill.

Mix up cooky-dough the day before making the cookies. Put it into the ice box over night to chill. In the morning, when doing the usual cooking and the oven is just right, roll out and bake.

It takes but a little time and it is easier to work with the firmly cooled dough.

The foregoing are invaluable forms of taking time by the forelock in the kitchen, and as the kitchen is every housekeeper's workshop, it is here that friction from emergencies is bound to occur unless proper precautions are taken.

To one who has not tried it taking time by the forelock, proves a revelation, and she who once begins to avail herself of its advantages will find new suggestions continually cropping up. The housekeeper will realize why the cookbooks that she has found a rational way to eliminate the hurry and worry of her work.

And He Gasps for Breath

Did you ever. On a hot day. Or any other kind. When there is any other kind. Look at the faces. And all the time. And wonder. Why. Everybody looked Like the second carriage. In a funeral procession. Pretty girls look as though their shoes. Or something. Pinched. Have brightened up the landscape. Have a pained gaze. And all the men. Are chewing. Carpet cakes. The way they look. And you wonder. Why.
Nobody ever smiles. It doesn't cost very much. But nobody does. And you go home. And look in the glass. And your face looks. Like a regular grouch.
Or, if you're a woman. Anybody looked Or had. A tooth out. Or something. But you don't do anything.
And after a while. It sets that way.
Like plaster. And there you are. And it serves you right. Berlin Reporter.

THE 54 HOUR LAW.

There has been placed in the hands of the voters of the State literature antagonistic to the 54 hour law; so full is it of exaggerated statements and misrepresentations that many will be misled by them. Fearing that there will not be sufficient thought given to this referendum, I am writing this for publication in your columns.

The Law in Brief.

1. No male minor under 16 years of age and no female shall be employed in any factory, workshop, or laundry more than 54 hours in one week.
2. No minor under 16 shall be employed in the above institutions before 6:30 a. m. and not later than 6:30 p. m.
3. No minor under 16 and no female shall be employed in any telephone exchange, employing more than three operators, mercantile establishment, store, restaurant, or telegraph office more than 54 hours in any week except during days between Dec. 17 and Dec. 24 and 8 days before Easter.
4. No female except in cases of emergency, can be employed more than 6 hrs. continuously, without interval of 1 hour.
5. Every employer shall keep posted the hours of labor required of employees under this bill.
6. Every employer shall keep a time book for employees under this bill and it shall be open to inspection of the Commission of Commerce.

Why Vote Yes?

1. Because minors under 16 and females are not physically able to endure the strain of more than 54 hours a week. A long working day in the factories mean physical impairment. Though ambitious women desire the increased income from a longer work day; though some from necessity are seemingly compelled to work more than the 54 hours. Why should they be allowed to run the risk of the physical strain and breakdown of health? Ill health and physical degeneracy is of social as well as of individual importance. It is not difficult to call to mind breakdowns which this law would have prevented. The pale faced girls and women in store and factory, forced to stand behind counters or machines for 6 long days and until late Saturday night, girls stunted prematurely in factories appeal for relief.

2. Men should vote because of the pernicious literature so replete with exaggerations and falsehoods that to any thinking man it will act as a boomerang. Its speeches betrayeth interest back of the commissions publications.

The writer corresponded with W. E. Lantry of the Maine Industrial Commission, asking him three questions and received the following replies.

1. Who are members of the Commission?

Answer: "I cannot tell this, because the members of the Commission do not enjoy receiving threats on their lives." Why the secrecy? If this bill is of importance, why be ashamed to let the Commission be known? Men are not generally afraid of being identified with those things that are good.

2. Are you affiliated with any party?

Answer: "No." Not as a Commission—I will say that men employed in this work, three-fourths are Democrats.

3. Who are paying the bills of publicity etc.?

Answer: "The people of Maine. Contributions have been received from all classes of manufacturers, merchants, hotel keepers, etc."

Now from the above who seems to be fighting the bill? Is it not the same class who fought the reduction of factory labor from 65 hours to 60 and have all ways fought any reduction in hours of labor?

Is it not evident that these men think more of the profit side than the social and physical welfare of minors and women?

The Commission literature states that the 54 hour law means less workless pay. This is untrue, judged by the past.

Hours are less to-day, yet wages are greater than at any time in the history of labor. An employer of labor, who employs carpenters at $3.20 a day, recently stated to me that he gets more and better work under the eight hour day than the longer day. This is found to be generally true. The eight hour day has been given to all government employees, railroad men are soon to have it. Is it too much to ask for a nine hour day for women and minors under 16?

The recent U. S. Child Labor Law, forbidding the interstate transportation of products from factories where minors under 16 are employed, is a direct blow to Child Labor. With the exception of the South, this law is generally endorsed.

The women and the youth of our country should be safe guarded. The fact that other states and countries misuse and abuse its women is not an argument against the law; it approves it.

The competition argument will not hold. Massachusetts, recognized to have the most progressive and advanced labor legislation is the greatest manufacturing state in the United States.

The passage of this law will not effect the laboring man, it has nothing to do with a boy of 15 years of age. It will cause no embarrassment to employers for adjustment can be easily made.

The voter will surely stand by this law and employers will be glad for its enactment, as they have seen the value of all past progressive legislation. It will make efficient. Efficiency means better products at a lower cost of production.

BETHEL
Middle Intervale.
We were much interested in what F. W. Sarnum wrote in September 1st Advertiser. Surely the "Go Devils" are out and it seems they go about like a roaring lion seeking whom they may devour.

September 3, a cool night, almost frost here.

Sam Brown of East Bethel brought us some nice fruit and meat in his clean looking car, Wednesday.

O. B. Farwell and wife were here recently, enroute to Bethel Hill.

A. M. Carter buys our eggs and takes them to Berlin, N. H. We see they are 37c per dozen. Keep your feed and their eggs, raise your feed and meat and be an independent farmer.

Boil in the same brine until tender and drain. Cut the corn from the cobs, cover with vinegar and cook until tender. Then drain, add the cabbage, onions chopped, celery chopped, and peppers from which the seeds have been removed and chopped, and mix together in a saucepan.
